Lainsburgh Cookie Policy.

You are on Lainsburgh.com. This website is owned by Lainsburgh Netherlands BV (KvK no. 55591663). This website uses cookies.

The website uses cookies to distinguish you from other users of this website. This helps us to provide you with a good experience when you browse our website and also allows us to improve our site.

Cookies are small text files placed on your device when you visit a website. They are generated by a web page server and can be used by that server whenever the user visits the site.

Cookies are widely used in order to make websites work, or work more efficiently, as well as to provide information to the owners of the site. To find out more about cookies, visit www.allaboutcookies.org.

No personal data

Cookies include a (unique) number. They do not contain personal data. Lainsburgh.com cannot use cookies to identify you personally. Nor can cookies be used to recognize you on other websites.

However, in case you actively provide your personal data to Lainsburgh.com for any specific purpose such as to receive our newsletter, promotional material and/or other job alerts or to register for events, such personal data will be stored by us.

What cookies Lainsburgh.com uses and why

The cookies we use on this website fall into two groups: functional cookies and analytical cookies. The cookies are activated at the start of your visit of the site or when you visit a specific section of the site. Some cookies will be automatically removed when you close the browser (session cookies). Some remain for a longer period.

It is also possible that other parties place cookies on your device via our website. This is the case when you click on buttons or links that connect you to the other party's website such as YouTube, Google+ and other social media or websites. When you click on these buttons or links, the other parties will be responsible for the information collected through their website's cookies.

Functional cookies

Functional cookies relate to the functionality of our websites and allow us to improve the service we offer to you through our website. None of the functional cookies contain personally identifiable information.

Analytical cookies

We use various different technologies on our site to help provide meaningful information about the way that users use our site. These involve providing us with details about how users navigate through our site, how often they make return visits and which parts of the site are the most popular. We use this information to help tailor and improve our content to the user, as well as making the user experience throughout the site as pleasurable as possible.

Our analytical cookies are only for this purpose, and whilst we use third-party software to report this information, it is available only for our use and we will never share this information with any other party or advertising agency. The third-party will only share this information where required to do so by law, or if another party processes the information on their behalf. This information will never be shared for advertising purposes.

The analytical cookies are anonymous and do not store personally identifiable information about users. They only track your visits within this site, not across multiple sites.

Change your preference regarding cookies

If you wish to change your preference regarding cookies go to the cookie settings:

Cookie Settings

You can also prevent your browser to store cookie and/or delete the cookies from your device at any time via the browser settings. Please consult the 'Help' section on your internet browser for instructions on this.

If you choose to not accept cookies, you should be aware that you may no longer be able to make use of all possibilities and functionalities of our website, and that certain parts of the website may also no longer be visible or accessible.